Standings Sheets

I have only had two teams tell me if they have at least one person on their team that is going to print the sheets each week and bring them to your match. I need to know if this can be accomplished or if I have to run sheets to that bar so they can have a printed copy. I know most everyone can pull it up online at your match to see how to set your lineups but it is still important to have at least one person on each team print out the sheets and bring them so that all of your players can read any information they need to be able to see weekly.

Rule 6.A.4.a

A legal 8 ball break is defined as making the eight ball on the opening break shot without committing any other 'foul' as listed in any of the defined rules. To clarify further, making an eight ball break after being instructed that it is ok to re-break, whether after complying with a rule, sportsmanship or otherwise, is still considered a legal eight ball break and should be designated on the scoresheets in the same manner.

Rule 6.A.4.b

A table run is definable as a table run only if all three of the following qualifications are met;

1. It is the shooters first trip to the table. This includes the break.
2. The table is still considered 'open' when he approaches the table.
3. The shooter is responsible for pocketing all 8 of his balls himself.

Thus the shooter cannot get a table run if his opponent breaks and pockets one of each, and then misses or scratches, leaving the table still 'open', (because the other shooter has pocketed one of his opponents balls for him). The incoming shooter could get a table run however, if his opponent breaks and pockets one or more balls of the same only (solids or stripes) and scratches, and the incoming shooter takes the opposite balls, of which none has been pocketed yet, and runs all 7 of his, along with the 8, because he has met all three requirements listed above.

It has been brought up that this can be confusing to keep track of. Please monitor this and we can re evaluate next year to determine if the requirements should be simplified at all. However, that is next year so please try and roll with it and ensure that guidelines are being met for this year.

Sponsor Fees and Dues

There are numerous bars that have not paid their sponsor fees yet. Also, several teams have sent wrong amounts for their weekly dues by the half and for the full year. Please get this straightened out today. It is $66 per half, $132 total.
